The cause of bilionsness is a dilated tomach. Food decomposes in the stomach, and that gives rise to the condition known as biliousness. It is a state of poisoning in the stomach, produced by the action of germs upon the food remaining there. When those germs grow up through the esophagus be ashamed of himself, for it means gualt.-N, Y. Weekly. that he has abused his stomach. A dilated stomach is very common among chronic dyspepties. It is a stretching of the stomach in consequence of overloading it; it is sometimes due to a breaking down of the stomach.

Lincoln J. Carter's new play, "The Tornado," is said to be a novelty. in every sense in which the word can appertain to a damatic work. When the curtain rises on the first act it reveals a handsome set ting of rustic surroundings. It is at this moment that Mr. Carter starts in on his audience, he goes right up to "High C" and stays there. The bean'y of his first act setting is but a plaything for the mighty tornado at the close of the act. The old homestead, with its outlying buildings, its grand old trees, its fragrant shrubbery, all are swept away before the awful wind which prevails. The impressive grandeur of this scene cannot be described, can hardly be imagined. In this tremendous climax Mr. Carter gave his said, "he has struck too high, he cannot hold up to it; the interest must flag after such a scene as that." But when, in the second act, the curtain-rise exposed the full deck of a ship with every detail in its maki-up complete, the swaying with the motion of the waves of the entire scene then came the order to shorten sail and prepare for a blow, and then a moment of expectancy and the grandeur of the rigging scene was before their eyes. Six old on the yardarm of a mast furling a monster sail forty feet above the deck, the wind cracking the canvas, the lightning For the best six specimen chrysanthemum plants, six varieties, grown out of greenhouse. To the Editor of the Engle. In your article "The Greer Case," no business man found competent but all want pay, you do a number of business men an injustice, as several of them were in attendance and were rejected and did not claim any fee for attendance. I was there Thursday and Friday but did not claim any fee for my attendance after being rejected. I never saw the defendant until I was called on the jury; then I learned that he was the son of a man I tnew seventeen years ago and with whon I had some business. Our business relations were pleasant, which was sufficient cause for being rejected by the attorney for the plaintiff. I would like to know how you expect to see a jury of Wichita business men when no man was accepted if he had read the papers. Yours truly,
